

The Governing Principles of Ancient China

Some 1,400 years ago, Emperor Taizong of the Tang dynasty (598-649 AD) ordered senior officials to compile a collection of books on imperial governing principles from classics and history books. The task was to extract the most important lessons related to self-cultivation, family management, good governance, and the attainment of world peace.

As The Governing Principles of Ancient China is too voluminous for today's readers, 360 essential excerpts on major topics were selected and compiled into three volumes.

Extracts from The Governing Principles of Ancient China were compiled into a lecture series. The first twelve lectures are now available on our website – <https://www.interfaith-harmony.org/index/resources/qunshu360>

All lectures are presented by Professor Yuli Liu, a lecturer on The Governing Principles of Ancient China.

Some of the topics include:

- Where to Find the Real Feng Shui?
- What is the Secret to Obtaining Wealth?
- Getting Angry is Punishing Yourself with the Mistakes of Others
- Cultivation of Virtue Starts with Eliminating Greed
- The Harm of Extravagance
- The Benefits of the Virtue of Humility
- A Treasure that Could Guide Humanity to Peace and Prosperity
